Agenda Item: Chair's Report

Scott reported this month, discussed plan for next year. Once the events for new student orientation are finished then the group will focus more on getting to know each other and working towards our goals.

Marcus introduced an icebreaker to start the meeting called "Two Truths and a Lie" where members had to guess whether or not the things they shared about themselves were fact. The game turned out to put a positive mood to the meeting. Emily also handed out the YAC books she assembled to help everyone learn a little bit about each other and put a face to the names in the group. Afterward it was stressed that more input and cooperation are necessary from members. Nilda also mentioned the Bryn Mawr orientation dates as well as the UPenn trolley and bus tour.

Scott and Marcus attended the CAC meeting, which dealt with more discussion on the smart card fare system. This system incorporates student ID's and fares to allow students to ride SEPTA.

Outreach and Communications Report: Prizes for the contest winners were sent out. Also more pamphlets and resources to share SEPTA's information were needed for the fair at Villanova. Nilda said she would soon be receiving an updated brochure.

Transit Education Subcommittee report: School specific material would be more beneficial and will be further discussed in the groups' individual subcommittee meeting.

Service Evaluation: The suburban survey was finished in the spring; writing a new one for August is not necessary as we can just print out more. After the results are in then they can pool the statistics.

Agenda Item: General Discussion

Discussion Summary: Attendance was discussed as well as a reminder for everyone to submit their class schedule to the YAC committee and updated bio for the website.
